NOTE

This report includes an explanatory Comment to each section of the recommended legislation. The Comments are written as if the legislation were already operative, since their primary purpose is to explain the law as it will exist to those who will have occasion to use it after it is operative. The Comments are legislative history and are entitled to substantial weight in construing the statutory provisions. For a discussion of cases addressing the use of Law Revision Commission materials in ascertaining legislative intent, see the Commission’s most recent Annual Report.

Historically, California had both municipal courts and superior courts. Those two kinds of trial courts heard different types of cases and used different procedures. They also received court security services from different sources: Marshals provided such services in the municipal courts, while sheriffs provided such services in the superior courts.

In 1998, California voters approved a constitutional amendment that permitted county-by-county trial court unification. Under that measure, if a majority of the municipal court judges and a majority of the superior court judges in a county agreed, the municipal and superior courts in the county could unify their operations in the superior court. By early 2001, the municipal and superior courts in all 58 counties had unified.

In most counties, the sheriff’s office and the marshal’s office similarly consolidated their operations at about the same time, and the sheriff’s office became responsible for providing court security services to the unified superior court. Just two counties still have a marshal’s office: Shasta and Trinity. In those counties, the marshal’s office (not the sheriff’s office) now provides court security services to the unified superior court.
Due to trial court unification and two other major reforms of the trial court system (enactment of the Lockyer-Isenberg Trial Court Funding Act and enactment of the Trial Court Employment Protection and Governance Act), hundreds of code sections became obsolete, in whole or in part. The Law Revision Commission is responsible for reviewing the codes and recommending revisions to remove the obsolete material.

The Commission has done extensive work on this matter, resulting in the enactment of many bills. Numerous provisions relating to marshals (as well as lots of other provisions) have already been revised to reflect trial court restructuring.

Some such work remains unfinished. Among other things, the codes still contain some marshal-related material that now appears to be obsolete.

This recommendation proposes statutory revisions to remove that marshal-related material from the codes. It was prepared pursuant to Government Code Sections 8298 and 71674 and Resolution Chapter 158 of the Statutes of 2018.

Respectfully submitted,

TRIAL COURT RESTRUCTURING
CLEAN-UP: OBSOLETE REFERENCES TO MARSHALS

California’s trial court system was extensively restructured around the turn of the century, to improve its efficiency and operations. As a result, hundreds of provisions throughout the codes became obsolete, in whole or in part.

Much of the obsolete material has since been removed from the codes on the Commission’s recommendation. Some clean-up work still needs to be done. In this recommendation, the Commission proposes various revisions to remove obsolete material relating to marshals, the law enforcement officers who provided court security services to the municipal courts.

Background Information

Before describing and explaining the proposed revisions, it may be helpful to briefly discuss (1) how the trial court system used to work and how it was restructured, (2) how court security services were provided in the past and how they are provided today, and (3) the Commission’s role in trial court restructuring and previous work in the area.

California’s Trial Court System: Past and Present

In the late 1990’s, each county had a superior court and one or more municipal courts with limited jurisdiction.¹ Those trial courts were county-operated, funded primarily by the counties, and largely staffed with county employees.²

¹ See former Cal. Const. art. VI, §§ 4, 5. Justice courts also used to exist, but they were eliminated statewide through a ballot measure approved by the voters in 1994. See 1994 Cal. Stat. res. ch. 113 (SCA 7 (Dills)) (Prop. 191, approved Nov. 8, 1994).

Around the turn of the century, three major reforms occurred:

- Trial court unification. In 1998, the voters approved a measure that permitted trial court unification on a county-by-county basis: On a vote of a majority of the municipal court judges and a majority of the superior court judges in a county, the municipal and superior courts in that county could unify their operations in the superior court. By early 2001, the trial courts in all of California’s 58 counties had unified. Each county now has a unified superior court, which handles all trial court operations in that county.

- Lockyer-Isenberg Trial Court Funding Act. Under this 1997 legislation, the state assumed full responsibility for funding trial court operations. The goal was to eliminate disparities in funding from county to county, helping to ensure equal service in courts across the state.

- Enactment of the Trial Court Employment Protection and Governance Act (“TCEPGA”). This legislation was enacted in 2000. It established a new personnel system for trial court employees, in which they are employed by the superior court itself (not by the county or the state).

Court Security Services: Past and Present

Historically, the local marshal was responsible for providing security services to a municipal court. The local sheriff was responsible for providing security services to a superior court.\textsuperscript{10} Around the same time as trial court unification and the other reforms described above, many counties consolidated their marshal’s office with their sheriff’s office. Typically, the marshal’s office was eliminated, its employees became employees of the sheriff’s office, and the sheriff’s office became responsible for providing all court security services in the county. In some counties, this occurred before the municipal and superior courts unified;\textsuperscript{11} elsewhere, it occurred after unification.\textsuperscript{12}

Two counties still have a marshal’s office: Shasta and Trinity. In those counties, the marshal’s office (not the sheriff’s office) now provides court security services to the unified superior court.\textsuperscript{13}

\textsuperscript{10} See Statutes Made Obsolete by Trial Court Restructuring: Part 1, 32 Cal. L. Revision Comm’n Reports 1, 15 (2002) (hereafter, “TCR: Part 1”). When justice courts existed, they received court security services from constables. Id. Today, there are no constables and most statutory references to them have been already been deleted. The Commission’s Involvement in Trial Court Restructuring

Government Code Section 71674 directs the Law Revision Commission to review the codes, determine whether any provisions are obsolete due to trial court restructuring, and recommend revisions to remove the obsolete material. The Commission is not authorized to make any policy decisions about trial court restructuring; it is just supposed to help conform the codes to reflect the major reforms described above.

The Commission has done a vast amount of work in response to this directive, resulting in many bills and the revision of over 1,700 code sections, as well as a few constitutional provisions. Nonetheless, some work still needs to be done.

One area still requiring attention relates to marshals. In previous work, the Commission recommended, and the Legislature enacted, numerous statutory revisions to delete obsolete references to

14. Section 71674 says:

71674. The California Law Revision Commission shall determine whether any provisions of law are obsolete as a result of the enactment of [the TCEPGA], the enactment of the Lockyer-Isenberg Trial Court Funding Act of 1997 (Chapter 850 of the Statutes of 1997), or the implementation of trial court unification, and shall recommend to the Legislature any amendments to remove those obsolete provisions. The commission shall report its recommendations to the Legislature, including any proposed statutory changes.

15. The Commission played a similar role in the early phases of trial court restructuring. See Trial Court Unification: Constitutional Revision (SCA 3), 24 Cal. L. Revision Comm’n Reports 1 (1994) (presenting constitutional revisions necessary to implement trial court unification, but not addressing its wisdom or desirability); TCU: Revision of Codes, supra note 2 (presenting statutory revisions necessary to accommodate county-by-county unification).

marshals.\textsuperscript{18} Due to the passage of time, however, additional statutory references to marshals have become obsolete.

In this study, the Commission systematically reviewed the codes for remaining references to marshals. As explained below, some of the marshal-related provisions it found contain material that now appears to be obsolete.

\textbf{Obsolete References to Marshals}

The remaining statutory references to marshals arise in a number of contexts. The ones described here appear to be obsolete and the Commission recommends revising them to delete the obsolete material.

\textit{Display of Flashing Amber Warning Lights by Peace Officer Personnel of a Marshal (Veh. Code § 25254)}

Under Vehicle Code Section 25254, a peace officer in a marshal’s department in a county with at least 250,000 people may display flashing amber warning lights when operating a publicly owned vehicle in specified circumstances. This provision appears to be obsolete because there no longer are any counties where it would apply. Only Shasta and Trinity counties still have marshals,\textsuperscript{19} and their populations are much less than 250,000.\textsuperscript{20} Consequently, the Commission recommends that Vehicle Code Section 25254 be repealed.\textsuperscript{21}

\textsuperscript{18}. See, e.g., TCR: Part 1, supra note 10, at 15-16; Statutes Made Obsolete by Trial Court Restructuring: Part 5, 39 Cal. L. Revision Comm’n Reports 109 (2009).

\textsuperscript{19}. See supra note 13 & accompanying text.

\textsuperscript{20}. See census.gov/quickfacts/fact/table/shastacountycalifornia/PST045218 (as of July 1, 2018, estimated population of Shasta County was 180,040); census.gov/quickfacts/fact/table/trinitycountycalifornia/PST045218 (as of July 1, 2018, estimated population of Trinity County was 12,535).

\textsuperscript{21}. See proposed repeal of Veh. Code § 25254 infra.
Locations of the Marshal’s Office in the North County Judicial District of San Diego County (Gov’t Code § 73956)

Government Code Section 73956 pertains to a former municipal court district (the North County Judicial District) in San Diego County. Among other things, the section says that the “marshal of the North County Judicial District shall be located within the City of Vista or such other place as shall be designated by the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Diego.” The section also says that the “marshal of the North County Judicial District shall maintain branch offices at a location within the City of Escondido as shall be designated by the board of supervisors.”

The entirety of Government Code Section 73956, including the marshal-related material, appears to be obsolete. San Diego County no longer has any municipal courts or marshals, and the judicial branch (not the county) is now primarily responsible for determining court locations. The Commission recommends that the section be repealed.

Merced County Marshal: Number, Salary, and Selection Process (Gov’t Code § 73796)

Government Code Section 73796 says that there “shall be one marshal of the Merced County Municipal Court.” The section also specifies the marshal’s salary range and how to fill a vacancy in the position.

The Merced County marshal’s office was abolished in 2003. Consequently, there is no longer any need to specify the number of marshals in that office, the marshal’s salary, and the marshal selection process.

23. See proposed repeal of Gov’t Code § 73956 infra.

24. See supra note 12.
Government Code Section 73796 thus appears to be obsolete. In fact, the entire article containing that section appears to be obsolete due to trial court restructuring. The Commission therefore recommends that the article pertaining to the Merced County Municipal Court be repealed. To ensure that this repeal would have no adverse effect on any former marshal, former employee of a marshal, or their families, the proposed legislation would include the following savings clause:

If a right, privilege, duty, authority, or status, including, but not limited to, a qualification for office, salary range, or employment benefit, is based on a provision of law repealed by this act, and if a statute, order, rule of court, memorandum of understanding, or other legally effective instrument provides that the right, duty, authority, or status continues for a period beyond the effective date of the repeal, that provision of law continues in effect for that purpose, notwithstanding its repeal by this act.

This savings clause is identical to the one used in massive previous legislation on trial court restructuring.

Sheriff-Marshall Consolidation Statutes (Gov’t Code §§ 26625-26625.9, 26638.15, 26639-26639.3, 72116, 74820-74820.3)

When trial court restructuring was in progress, many counties had statutes specifying how to consolidate the local sheriff’s office with the local marshal’s office. Most of those statutes have since been repealed, typically pursuant to a sunset clause that was added on the Commission’s recommendation. The Commission is not aware of any adverse effects from those repeals.

For various reasons, a few counties still have statutes that describe or refer to the sheriff-marshal consolidation process. Those counties are Contra Costa, Los Angeles, Merced, San Joaquin, and Shasta. Due to the passage of time since consolidation, it now seems unnecessary to preserve the material in these statutes regarding the transition to consolidation. The Commission proposes to delete that material as obsolete.

72110 (Riverside County); 72114.2 (San Diego County), 72115 (San Bernardino County).

30. The Commission’s 2002 report on trial court restructuring explained:

Consolidation of sheriff and marshal operations has been an ongoing process. In most counties, the sheriff has assumed operations formerly performed by the marshal. The consolidation statutes may continue to serve functions in some counties to the extent that they guarantee continuing rights of former marshal personnel. The proposed legislation accommodates this situation by generally preserving the existing consolidation statutes, but adding a 15-year sunset clause to each of them.

TCR: Part 1, supra note 10, at 16 (emphasis added; footnotes omitted). The 2002 legislation thus generally protected the rights of marshals and their personnel by preserving the sheriff-marshal consolidation statutes for a 15-year transition period. The 2002 legislation further protected those rights through the savings clause discussed above.

34. See Gov’t Code §§ 74820-74820.3.
35. See Gov’t Code § 72116.
36. See proposed revisions of:

• Gov’t Code §§ 26625, 26625.5, 26625.6, 26625.8, 26625.9 & Article 1.2 heading infra (Contra Costa County).
• Gov’t Code §§ 26638.15-26638.15 infra (Merced County).
• Gov’t Code §§ 26639, 26639.2, 26639.3 & Article 1.8 heading infra (Los Angeles County). would protect any remaining rights of persons affected by the consolidation process.

• Gov’t Code § 72116 infra (Shasta County).
• Gov’t Code § 74820.1 & Article 32.3 heading infra (San Joaquin County).

The Commission also proposes another revision of the sheriff-marshall consolidation statute for Contra Costa County. See proposed amendment of Gov’t Code § 26625.3 & Comment infra. This amendment would delete an obsolete reference to a discontinued practice. The amendment falls within the Commission’s general authority to “recommend revisions to correct technical or minor substantive defects in the statutes of the state ….” Gov’t Code § 8298.

(2) Elimination of the marshal’s office in Merced County and transfer of its functions to the sheriff’s office. See Section 26638.15; Merced County Ordinance No. 1687 (effective Jan. 15, 2003); Merced County Bd. of Supervisors, Minutes (Dec. 3, 2002), pp. 4, 16; see also Section 69921.5.

Note. The text of the repealed article is set out below.

26638.15. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board of Supervisors of Merced County may abolish, by ordinance, the Merced County Marshal’s office and establish a court security division in the Merced County Sheriff’s Department. If the board of supervisors chooses to abolish this office, the following provisions shall apply:

(a) The sheriff shall be appointing authority for all division personnel. The person selected by the sheriff to oversee the operation of court security services shall report directly to the sheriff, or his or her designee.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, all personnel of the marshal’s office affected by the abolition of the marshal’s office
Merced County shall become employees of the sheriff’s department at their existing or equivalent classification, salaries, and benefits.

(c) Permanent employees of the marshal’s office on the effective date of transfer of services from the marshal to the sheriff pursuant to this section shall be deemed to be qualified, and no other qualifications shall be required for employment or retention. Promotions for all personnel from the marshal’s office shall be made pursuant to standards set by the sheriff. Probationary employees in the marshal’s office on the effective date of the abolition shall not be required to serve a new probationary period. All probationary time served as an employee of the marshal [sic] shall be credited toward probationary time required as an employee of the sheriff’s department.

(d) All county service with the marshal’s office by employees of the marshal’s office on the effective date of the abolition of the marshal’s office shall be counted toward seniority in the court security division of the sheriff’s department.

(e) No employee of the marshal’s office on the effective date of a consolidation pursuant to this section shall lose peace officer status, or otherwise be adversely affected as a result of the abolition and merger of personnel into the sheriff’s department.

(f) The personnel of the marshal’s office who become employees of the sheriff’s department may not be transferred from the division in the sheriff’s department under which court security services are provided unless the transfer is voluntary.
